Hello Friends,

I was struck recently while explaining to a new employee about our history. We started in 1997, just as online shopping was beginning: Quite a bit has changed since then. Still, many of the values we started out with now seem more important than ever. We began as an actual brick and mortar store and importer that represents small businesses, in which real foods were made by hand using artisan methods and natural ingredients. One of our new European suppliers, Van Strien from Holland, makes old-fashioned puff pastry cheese straws "by craftsmen, not machines" in the European tradition, or our Scottish shortbread, which is cut by hand.

We are a small family-owned business that works at supporting many other small businesses, employing people, and hopefully bringing pleasure to many people with our gifts and the craft of making them.

Sincerely,

David Porat, Founder and Owner
